EDN Introduces New Board, Appoints Flore Deroose as New Director

The European Documentary Network (EDN) is pleased to announce the appointment of Flore Deroose as EDN interim director and further introduces a newly composed Board. After a period of transition at the end of 2018, these recent changes mark a new chapter in the development of EDN and provide a solid foundation for the future of the association.

The former EDN Board appointed Jan Riemens as Chairman and Flore Deroose as its newest members next to Jan Röfekamp. After the departure of former director Paul Pauwels, the Board has asked Flore Deroose to also take on the director's role on an interim basis. Additional details on the professional background of EDN's new Board members are available on the EDN website.

Looking at the future of EDN, Flore Deroose comments: "I'm excited to be part of the team and really look forward to working with our colleagues from the European and international documentary community. EDN's primary mission is, and always has been, to serve its members and documentary professionals from across the globe and we intend to continue to develop this mission in the digital era. This of course also means that EDN will continue to provide its wide range of established services and activities as it has done over the past decades".

The association would like to extend its welcome to interim director Flore Deroose, who replaces departing director Paul Pauwels. The EDN team would like to express its sincere gratitude to Paul for his important contribution to the European documentary culture and wishes him all the best for the future.

EDN would further like to thank departing Board members Andy Glynne, Björn Jensen and Estelle Robin-You for serving this organisation so well over the past years.

For further questions and inquiries, Flore Deroose can be contacted via her email address [flore\[at\]edn.network](mailto:flore[at]edn.network).
